

PAPER PACK · ONE-TO-ONE CHECK-IN

Montree Milestones

A developmental check-in for a Montessori classroom. Three times a year, about fifteen minutes, one adult and one child, in a quiet place. For the child it is simply Discovery Time: looking at pictures and talking with a grown-up they know.

4 years · A4 · 4;0 – 4;11

Form B — the paper pack for the Winter window. Three modules: Word & Sound Play, Number & Shape Play, English Time. 50 items in the sitting plus 6 practice items, 28 observation records rated across the whole window, and count-only summary tables.

BEFORE YOU BEGIN

How a check-in runs

Sit beside the child in a quiet space — never on the open work floor. Put the child pages where the child can see and reach them. You read; the child points, touches or talks; you mark the record sheet. Nothing is timed. Nothing here is a test of the child.

WHAT IS IN THIS PACK

1. This guide — how to run the sitting.
2. Teacher script, one block per item, for all three modules. Read the lines in quotation marks exactly as written — they are word-for-word the lines the tablet speaks, which is what keeps the two ways of running a check-in comparable.
3. Child pages — the pictures the child looks at. No words and no instructions on them: everything the child hears comes from you.
4. Record sheets, one per module, carrying the response key.
5. Observation booklet — the records for this age, rated from what you have already seen in the work cycle, with the neighbouring ages printed for reference.
6. Summary sheet — count-only lookup tables, then the numbers you type into Montree.

Printing and preparing

- Print A4, single-sided, at 100% — no “fit to page”, because the pictures are sized for small hands.
- Black-and-white printing is fine. Every picture stays readable in grey.
- Separate the child pages from the teacher pages before you sit down — a folder or ring-binder, pictures facing the child, works well.
- Keep the record sheet on your side of the table, angled away from the child.

The three modules

MODULE	STRANDS	ITEMS	PRACTICE	LENGTH
Word & Sound Play M-LIT	Receptive language & listening · Expressive language & vocabulary · Phonological awareness · Print & alphabet knowledge	16	2	≤5 min
Number & Shape Play M-MATH	Number sense & counting · Quantity, comparison & early operations · Shape, space & pattern · Measurement, sorting & classification	16	2	≤5 min
English Time M-EFL	Receptive vocabulary (English) · Listening & instruction-following (English) · Phonological awareness (English) · Letter-sound knowledge (English) · Word reading / CVC (English) · Spoken production (English)	18	2	≤5 min

The three modules together make one sitting of about fifteen minutes. You may run one module today and another tomorrow: a profile may be built across several days inside the same check-in window, and a part-finished sitting is still good information.

THE RULES OF THE SITTING

Four things that matter more than the items

PRACTICE FIRST

Every module opens with two practice items. These are the only place you may tell the child how they are doing: a warm “yes, that’s the one”, or “let’s look at that one together” and show them. Practice is never recorded.

THEN: WARM, AND EVEN

Once the module proper begins, meet every answer the same way — “Thank you.” A nod, a smile, on to the next picture. The child must not be able to read from your face how it is going.

REPEATING

If the child asks, say the line once more, exactly as written. Do not rephrase it, do not point, do not lean towards a picture. Then wait again.

WAITING

There is no time limit and no timer anywhere in this pack. Three- and four-year-olds often take several seconds before they commit to a choice. Let the silence sit.

When to stop

- Within a strand — after 3 responses in a row that do not match the key, move on to the next strand. The remaining items in that strand are left blank and reported as not yet checked.
- Across the module — after 5 in a row that do not match, close the module warmly and stop. “Thank you for playing with me today.”
- Whenever the child has had enough — a child who wants to stop, stops. Note it on the record sheet and the profile stands as it is.

When a child sails through

If every item in a strand matches the key, you may carry on in that same strand with up to 4 items from the next age band’s pack, and note them on the record sheet under next-band items. This is how “already secure beyond this age” is evidenced — it is never assumed from a full sheet on its own.

Closing

Every child finishes the same way, whatever happened in between: “Thank you for playing with me today.” No stickers, no stars, no points to collect. A child should leave the table feeling exactly as good as the child who sat there before them.

ABOUT FORM A AND FORM B

This is Form B, the form for the Winter window. Both forms exist on paper, one pack each: Form A for Autumn and Spring, Form B for Winter. They are matched strand by strand and carry the same number of items in the same order; only the pictures and the words change.

Use the pack that belongs to the window you are in, and record the form exactly as it is printed here — never relabel one form as the other. The whole point of two forms is that a child does not meet the same items twice in one year: repeating Form A in Winter would show practice, not growth, and the two windows could no longer honestly be read side by side.

What the words on the record sheet mean

Emerging	The beginnings are there, with an adult alongside.
Developing	Doing it, most days, sometimes needing a hand.

Secure	Doing it independently and consistently.
Not yet checked	Too little evidence this window. Reported openly, never hidden, and never counted as a difficulty.

Child pages

The pages the child sees. There are no words on them on purpose: everything the child hears comes from you, so what is being looked at is listening and thinking, never reading.

Take these pages out and keep them in a folder facing the child. The small code at the foot of each page — module and item number — matches the number in the teacher script; it is there for you, not for the child. Some pages show one picture on its own at the top with choices underneath: the top picture is the one you draw the child's attention to first, exactly as the script says.

SECTION 5

Observation booklet

The strands a sitting cannot reach: persistence, friendship, pouring, buttoning, care of the room. Rated from the work cycle across the whole window — never staged.

SECTION 5 · RATED ACROSS THE WHOLE WINDOW

Observation booklet — 4 years

Rate from what you have seen in the work cycle this term. Best fit, not a checklist. Leave a milestone unrated rather than guessing — unrated milestones are reported, never hidden.

These 28 records are not a sitting. They are the things you already know about a child from the work cycle — pouring, buttoning, joining a friend, staying with a hard job. Nothing here should be staged for the occasion. Tick the one description that fits best.

The same records at the ages either side

Best-fit judgement is easier when the whole continuum is in front of you, so the other two ages are printed here in full — all 84 observation records across the three ages appear in this pack. Do not tick these. A child is rated on their own age pages; these are here so you can see where a description sits in the run of things, and for the child who is close to a birthday.

SECTION 6

Lookup & summary

Point counts become bands by reading a row. Then the counts go into Montree, which writes the family's Growth Story.

SECTION 6 · COUNTING ONLY

From the sheets to the bands

Add up the points you marked for each milestone's items, then read the band straight off the row. The cut-offs are already worked out — there is nothing to divide and no percentage to work out. If fewer items were given than the last column asks for, the milestone is not yet checked: leave it, and it is reported as it stands. A dash means that band cannot arise for a milestone carrying that few points.

Your judgement comes last, and it wins. If the band the table gives you does not match the child you know, set the band you believe is right and write one line saying why. Montree keeps both and reports how often it happened, openly, as a count. This pack supports teacher observation; it does not overrule it.

WHAT THIS AGE IS EXPECTED TO REACH

At 4 years this pack carries 44 core milestones marked expected and 8 in English. A further 1 belongs to the next age band — securing it is recorded as exceeded. 3 are informative rather than expected: they appear in some children at this age and are never counted against a child. Only expected milestones that were actually checked go into the attainment figure; everything left blank is printed as not yet checked, never quietly dropped.

Bands you set yourself, against the table

Montree turns these counts into the family’s Growth Story and into the attainment figure — the share of the milestones typically expected at this age in mainstream early-years settings that this child has securely met, always printed with the number it was counted out of. Where fewer than 12 expected milestones were checked, no percentage is shown at all and the milestone list stands on its own. There are no percentiles, no ranking of one child against another, and no comparison of one class with another.

A NOTE FOR WHOEVER READS THIS NEXT

These are criterion-referenced classroom check-ins carried out by the child’s own teacher. They are not psychometrically normed instruments; the two forms are matched by design rather than by calibration; and one classroom is far too small a group to draw norms from. What they carry honestly is this child’s own movement, window to window — which is the evidence worth having.
