

Fifteen pieces on one sheet of A4 portrait card, 300 gsm, printed once. print at 100% — never “fit to page” · cut on the dotted line, where two ticks point at each other. Laminate the whole sheet first, then cut — cut first and the corners peel inside a fortnight.

  a	  an	  I
  the	  ate

stop

question

shout

Heart words, Tray 4. Five are printed: a · an · I · the · ate. Seven are blank with the heart already on them, because the guide says add one heart word a week and by half-term you need more. Punch the dashed amber circle and put them on a small keyring. The heart is not decoration: it means this word has a trick in it and cannot be sounded out.

Punctuation tiles, Tray 5. Deliberately oversized — they are objects a child places on purpose, not stickers. Mount them on 3 mm foam or a wooden outcut if you can, and keep them in a tiny dish at the right-hand end of the sentence line. The full stop is a 10 mm dot against the 30 mm red grammar circle of Tray 8, so shape alone never has to carry the difference.